Riddle as Russian sub limps home...

A RUSSIAN nuclear
submarine was limping
back to base yesterday
after breaking down "outside Russia's territorial waters".

A Russian navy
spokesman said the vessel, which is part of the country's Far East fleet, had developed
only minor
engine trouble.

And he added: "The situation is under full control."

Fleet commanders are reported as saying
there is no radiation
leak but they have refused to name the
submarine involved or give any indication of where it was operating.
